

Pueblo Police Department Joins National ABLE Project

February 10, 2021– Pueblo Police Department has been accepted into the Active Bystandership for Law Enforcement (ABLE) Project, Georgetown University Law Center’s national training and support initiative for U.S. law enforcement agencies committed to building a culture of peer intervention that prevents harm.

By demonstrating a firm commitment to transformational reform with support from local community groups and elected leaders, Pueblo Police Department joins a select group of more than 70 other law enforcement agencies and statewide and regional training academies from across the country. In the State of Colorado, only the Pueblo Police Department and two other agencies were selected to participate in this program.

Backed by prominent civil rights and law enforcement leaders, the evidence-based, field-tested ABLE Project was developed by Georgetown Law’s Innovative Policing Program in collaboration with global law firm Sheppard Mullin LLP to provide practical active bystandership strategies and tactics to law enforcement officers to prevent misconduct, reduce mistakes, and promote health and wellness.

ABLE gives officers the tools they need to overcome the innate and powerful inhibitors all individuals face when called upon to intervene in actions taken by their peers.

Chief Troy Davenport said seeking inclusion to join the ABLE Project reflected important priorities for the Pueblo Police Department.

“I look forward to seeing this training firsthand” said Chief Troy Davenport. “and more importantly observing the positive affect of ABLE on the Pueblo Police Department and other departments in our region.”

Those backing the Pueblo Police Department’s application to join the program included Mayor Nicolas A. Gradisar, NAACP Pueblo President-Roxana Mack, Chair of the Pueblo Human Relations Commission- Jean Flynn Ray, who wrote letters of support.

“The Police Department recognizes there is always room for improvement and growth to further server the community and increase the community confidence” wrote Roxana Mack, NAACP Pueblo President.

Professor Christy Lopez, co-director of Georgetown Law’s Innovative Policing Program, which runs ABLE, explained: “The ABLE Project seeks to ensure every police officer in the United States has the opportunity to receive meaningful, effective active bystandership training, and to help agencies transform their approach to policing by building a culture that supports and sustains successful peer intervention to prevent harm.”

Chair of the ABLE Project Board of Advisors, Sheppard Mullin partner Jonathan Aronie, added: “Intervening in another’s action is harder than it looks after the fact, but it’s a skill we all can learn. And, frankly, it’s a skill we all need – police and non-police. ABLE teaches that skill.”

The ABLE Project is guided by a Board of Advisors comprised of civil rights, social justice, and law enforcement leaders, including Vanita Gupta, the president of the Leadership Conference on Civil and Human Rights; Commissioner Michael Harrison of the Baltimore Police Department; Commissioner Danielle Outlaw of the Philadelphia Police Department; Dr. Ervin Staub, professor emeritus at the University of Massachusetts Amherst and the founder of the Psychology of Peace and Justice Program; and an impressive collection of other police leaders, rank and file officers, and social justice leaders.

ABLE Project Train-The-Trainer events take place every month. By the end of February, Pueblo Police Department instructors will be certified as ABLE trainers; and over the coming months, all of the Department’s officers will receive 8 hours of evidence-based active bystandership education designed not only to prevent harm, but to change the culture of policing.
